Hello Peter,
Thank you for the letter. It was nice to hear from you.
I spent my last birthday at a place where you can play laser tag, it was very fun! My family has a tradition - we get the person that has the party a present, but if the person is from our family, a cake, plus whatever food he wants. I would like to have my next birthday at a place where you have VR goggles and shoot each other, like in laser tag. I hope you have a good birthday, and get a lot of cool presents!
Your friend,
Jacob

Last week I played a new game called "Warcraft", "Minecraft". There is only one character, a man wearing blue clothes.

It doesn't have a plot at all it's just a simulator where you build what you want. It's a place where you are free.

You build everything in a huge world, which includes forests, caves, deserts and mountains.

The aim of the game is to just play in it after a hard day, when you are tired.

I will recommend this game to people, who want to be builders in future, or people who want to relax. I recommend it because I'm the one who want to relax. Hope you will enjoy it.

Charles Dickens once said that procrastination is the thief of time and that we have to collar it. In that quote he meant that procrastination is very time-wasting and that we should take control over it and start doing more useful work. I can't agree more with Charles Dickens. I myself sometimes spend a lot of time doing practically nothing instead of, for example, my homework. And we have to "collar" it, because if we won't, it will be harder and harder to stop procrastinating and continue your normal life. As an example I'd like to use Goncharov's "Oblomov". I haven't read it yet, but I was told that it is about a man who was pretty much just laying on a couch and procrastinating. In that piece it is ~~port~~ shown as an inappropriate type of behavior through the piece's comedic nature. In conclusion I'd like to point out again that productivity is much better than procrastinating. That's why there is a Russian proverb: De la vremya, potekhe-chas that means that your priority should not be your entertainment. Yesterday I did all of my homework for today and tomorrow and I'm <sup>feeling</sup> fantastic. It can be used as an argument to support my point too. *-(hey-hey-hey)

The words about procrastination is absolutely right. Nowadays people have a lot of businesses and live an active live. People work, make money or study at school, university and etc. They forget to have extra classes. They think that it's normal to do nothing after work or studying. But I don't think so. I can say that I know how important to have extra classes do a lot of things. I don't understand people ~~ka~~ who can browsing the Internet and watching TV a lot. It's just a time-wasting! I like doing useful things. I like reading books or studying new languages when I have free time. When I want to relax or have a rest I can walking and listening ~~to~~ <sup>the</sup> reading of books. It's interesting and useful. So, I think that people who want to be smart and have a good brain should do only right things. Everyone can find their favourite business and have super results in this thing. It can be sport, dance, books or something else. But you can't do nothing and procrastinate without interests. You should be interested in your business that's why you will want to spent your time doing something useful. And you will be ~~the~~ the best version of yourself.
